PremierGarage and Sika take flooring to new heights
New Premier NX flooring system provides customized options

PHOENIX (May 26, 2009) – PremierGarage, the leading company in garage enhancement, has announced that it will partner with Sika Corporation for a range of advanced flooring solutions. Sika will provide PremierGarage and its franchisees an exclusive modular resinous flooring system, called Premier NX.

“The partnership with Sika will allow our franchisees to effectively make custom recommendations to customers based on the unique attributes of the job, climate, concrete condition, performance requirements and price point,” explained Don Shultz, President and CEO of PremierGarage. “And we’ll be able to offer these flooring solutions with the confidence that they are backed by Sika, the global leader in industrial floor coatings.”

The modular resinous flooring system designed by Sika will provide PremierGarage nine flooring solutions and price points to offer, while most competitors offer only one or two products. The system, which is formulated exclusively for PremierGarage, is comprised of three compatible materials which can be used in various combinations producing an array of flooring systems of increasingly higher performance attributes and aesthetics.

This modular resinous flooring system is the first offering resulting from the new partnership. Both companies are looking forward to collaborating on future projects including exterior concrete coating systems.

“We’re thrilled to be partnering with PremierGarage,” said Brad Weil, Marketing and Technical Manager of Sika Industrial Floor and Wall Systems. “The marriage of our concrete expertise and industrial grade product with PremierGarage’s nationwide network of franchisees and superior customer service is sure to yield outstanding results for years to come.”
